Extension Activity
For use after your field exploration in the museum galleries

Making Meaning: Relating Your Research to Life Today

Now that you’ve learned how some of the Native peoples of this region historically adapted to their environments, think about how they (and you) adapt to living in Southern Arizona today.

1. What are the characteristics of the environment that you live in?
   (Hint: think about different things like temperature/climate, plants, water, and all of the human-made parts of the environment.)

2. What are some of the things you do living in this environment?
   (Hint: Think about your daily activities, as well as what you do for fun.)

3. What are modern adaptations that you use to be able to comfortably live here?